It's Dad's Day!

6 GIFTS DAD IS SURE TO LOVE

Dad is a very important person in your life! Every year when Father's Day rolls around, it can be tough to come up with the perfect gift, whether it be for your dad, a new father, your grandfather, or a father figure. Getting creative can be tricky, but this list is sure to help you with an idea or two for all different price ranges!

Wallet

Why not go really classic and opt for a thoughtful and practical gift? Most men's wallets see a lot of wear and tear. After all, they're sat on, toted around in pockets all day long, and sometimes forgotten about and sent through the wash. A new one just may be in order!

Massage Gun

Massage guns are rising in popularity. To help Dad recover from soreness and injury or just a tough workout, a massage gun will do the trick! The best part is that they range in price, and you can even purchase one on Amazon!

Apple Watch Strap

Does the dad you're celebrating own an Apple Watch? If so, help him customize it with a new Apple Watch strap. You can choose from many materials, colors, and designs so he can blend in or stand out as much as he wants.

A New Cooler

Men love their coolers — it's a foolproof Father's Day gift! Whether Dad loves to camp, fish, tailgate, go to the beach, or barbecue in the backyard, he's sure to appreciate a new way to store ice, drinks, food, or bait!

Tool Bucket Organizer

Is your dad a bit of a handyman? Help him get organized and never lose track of his tools again. Tool bucket organizers come in many forms and, again, can be purchased right online, making your shopping easy!

Bluetooth Headphones or Speakers

If your father doesn't have Bluetooth headphones or speakers yet, he's missing out. The opportunity to jam out wirelessly while working out, cutting the grass, doing hobby work, or just relaxing is effortless with this thoughtful gift.

CLAIM YOUR FREE YO-YO! Our Homage to National Yo-Yo Day

I have a question: How come you never see kids playing with yo-yos anymore?!

When I was younger, I had an entire yo-yo collection, and I played with those suckers all the time. I saved up my pennies, nickels, and dimes — whichever coins I could find or make in tips working at my dad's gas station — to buy yo-yos at the five-and-dime store. They cost a dollar or two apiece. I probably had 10!

My favorites were my cheap Duncans (the premier yo-yo brand back in the '70s) and my butterfly yo-yo, which was shaped like an hourglass. I spent hours working on tricks. I could walk the dog and throw the sleeper, and do gravity pull, break away, around the world, and even the brain twister.

Practicing yo-yo tricks kept me out of trouble ... as long as I didn't practice in the house. If I walked the dog indoors and hit something, oh man, would I catch it! Instead, yo-yoing was an outside sport, especially in the summer when I met up with other serious yo-yoers on the block or at the park and we swapped tricks. (Yes, we were very cool.)

I'm not totally stuck in the '70s. I know why kids don't play with yo-yos anymore: It's because they all have cell phones tethered to their hands. But that doesn't mean I have to be happy about it.

I think it's time we bring back the yo-yo and share its magic with a new generation.

June 6 is National Yo-Yo Day, so what better time to start than now? In honor of the holiday, our firm has purchased 500 yo-yos imprinted with the Dellutri Law Group logo. They're here at the office waiting for you!

We're ready to give away yo-yos FOR FREE to the first 500 people who come by the office. Just ask for one at the front desk. These yo-yos are for kids of all ages, so how you use yours is up to you.

Want to learn your first trick? Refurbish your skills? Teach the next generation how to really have a good time?

We've got you. No need to call ahead. Just pop in today to claim your new favorite toy.

Fun Facts About Yo-Yos:

- In 1985 a yo-yo was taken into space by NASA to test the effects of microgravity.
- The largest yo-yo ever produced was 256 lbs. and is in the Guinness book of world records.
- Lastly, check out Shu Takada on social media. He is a true yo-yo six-time world champion.

If any of our readers have a picture of themselves doing a yo-yo trick that they are not afraid to share, please send it to me at: CarmenDellutri@DellutriLawGroup.com. All the youngsters at the office who think yo-yoing is nerdy need a lesson from us back-in-the-day cool kids who were "yo-yo masters". Long live the yo-yo!

What Is Debt Consolidation?

Debt consolidation happens when an individual makes a decision to re-organize their debt using another form of financing. When the person makes this decision, they should do so with a lower interest-rate and the mindset of reducing their overall debt.

Consolidating debts is not enough. An individual must also make a conscious choice to eliminate those debts once consolidated; otherwise, they run the risk of falling back into the same cycle of debt.

The debt consolidation industry has grown in direct proportion with Americans consumer debt loads. Although many people fear bankruptcy and will not even consider it as an option to their debt problems, filing for bankruptcy may be in their best interest, and it needs to be considered before making the decision to consolidate.

When considering debt consolidation as an option, individuals need to look at its track record of high costs, unreachable goals, and large failure rate. Likewise, an individual must really think about the psychological reasons and financial reasons of why they want to consolidate their debts.

For some people, it is easier to go with a debt consolidation group for emotional reasons than it is to even consider the bankruptcy option. This is unfortunate, and foolish pride leads many people down the wrong path, leaving people caught in a debt cycle which they may never recover from. Even worse, debt consolidation keeps them in the debt cycle for much longer than they need to be which could take years or decades to recover from.

Debt consolidation is an option for some people, and it should definitely be considered by everyone before making the decision to file for bankruptcy protection. But, when looked at with an objective eye, it usually can be quickly discarded as an option when you look at the cost and the failure rate for most debt consolidation plans. The best thing you can do is look at all of your options and figure out what option is best for you.

When It Rains, It Pours

A CASE DRENCHED IN DISORDER

Some people love the rain. After all, there's something magical about thunder rolling through the clouds as lightning illuminates a multitude of raindrops. Yet, if the storm is too strong — or even dangerous to be in — people might not enjoy it at all. And that certainly appears to have been the case in 1996 when an Israeli woman in Haifa, Israel, sued a television station because of their incorrect weather report.

The weather forecaster, Danny Rup, predicted that the day would be beautiful and sunny, but the weather had a mind of its own and ended up being rainy, dark, and gloomy. Because the woman relied upon the accuracy of the report, she left her home without a raincoat or an umbrella and got caught in the pouring rain.

As the old wives' tale goes, if you get caught in the rain, you'll catch a cold. Well, the woman claimed that after being exposed to inclement weather, she caught the flu and subsequently was out of work for four days, had to visit the doctor, and spent $38 on medicine. Due to such a daunting experience, she also said that she suffered additional stress from the entire situation. The woman ended up taking Channel 2 news station to a small claims court where she sought financial compensation to cover her sickness and suffering — as well as an apology from the forecaster who wrongly predicted the weather. The woman stated that weather forecasts are legally binding.

Many of us would see this as a frivolous lawsuit, but the TV station settled out of court and the woman received $1,000 for her pain and suffering and an apology from Danny Rup.

Despite this case, most people take weather predictions from television and radio forecasters with a bit of skepticism thinking that forecasts are just a well-educated guess based on available resources — and it can change on a whim. It's just the nature of it!

Sweet and Spicy BBQ Chicken Skewers

Inspired by RecipeRunner.com

Summer is here, and you know what that means: It's time to break out the barbecue and meat skewers!

INGREDIENTS

For the Marinade

- 1 tbsp olive oil
- 2 tbsp soy sauce
- 2 tbsp chili garlic sauce
- 2 tbsp rice vinegar
- 3 tbsp honey
- Juice of 1 lime
- 3/4 tsp smoked paprika
- 1/2 tsp salt

For the Skewers

- 2 lbs chicken breast, cut into bite-size cubes
- 1 small pineapple, cut into 1-inch cubes

DIRECTIONS

1. In a bowl, whisk together marinade ingredients.
2. In a reusable freezer bag, combine cubed chicken and all but 1/4 cup of the marinade.
3. Seal bag and massage marinade into the chicken. Chill in the fridge overnight.
4. The following day, preheat the grill to 400 F. Thread chicken and pineapple onto skewers, adding two cubes of chicken for each cube of pineapple.
5. Grill the skewers for 3–4 minutes per side, brushing with the reserved marinade in the final minutes.
6. Serve over rice or with your favorite barbecue sides!
